

Regional Consent and Cookie Compliance Comparison

Status: jurisdiction-specific draft. Replace bracketed placeholders before publication. This is not legal advice.

Executive summary

Yes. There are meaningful differences. The EU/EEA and UK require prior opt-in consent for non-essential cookies, SDK access/storage and behavioural advertising technologies. The United States is more fragmented: many regimes focus on notice and opt-out for sale/sharing/targeted advertising, while COPPA requires verifiable parental consent for children under 13. Australia and New Zealand are less cookie-banner driven, but require transparent privacy notices and careful handling of personal information, overseas disclosures, identifiers and marketing/advertising choices.

Recommended structure

- Keep one global Terms and Conditions document, with local mandatory consumer rights preserved.
- Keep one global Privacy Policy, but add jurisdictional sections for EU/EEA, UK, United States, Australia and New Zealand.
- Use different consent-banner behaviour by region: opt-in in EU/EEA and UK; opt-out/privacy choices in the US; notice plus controls in Australia and New Zealand.
- Use separate regional Cookie / Similar Technologies notices if publishing on a website or app settings page by market.

Regional comparison

Region	Default approach for ads/tracking	Recommended app UI
EU/EEA	Opt-in before non-essential SDKs, analytics, ad measurement or personalised ads. Reject must be available and consent must be specific, informed and withdrawable.	Consent screen before loading non-essential ads/analytics. Buttons: Accept all / Reject non-essential / Manage choices.
United Kingdom	Very similar to EU, under UK GDPR and PECR. Apps and similar device technologies are covered.	UK version of consent screen before non-essential SDKs. Include ICO complaint route.
United States	No single federal cookie law. COPPA applies to under-13 users. State privacy laws, especially California, require opt-out of sale/sharing/targeted advertising when applicable.	Privacy Choices screen: Do Not Sell or Share / Opt out of targeted advertising / Limit sensitive data where applicable. For under 13, do not use targeted ads without parental consent.

Australia	No EU-style cookie opt-in rule in general, but Privacy Act/APPs require transparent notice, proper collection, overseas disclosure information and valid consent where relied on.	Notice plus privacy controls. Avoid implying consent merely from silence; provide opt-out for personalised ads.
New Zealand	Privacy Act 2020 uses information privacy principles. Focus on purpose, notice, access/correction, security, retention, overseas disclosure and unique identifiers.	Notice plus privacy controls. Explain SDKs/ads and overseas disclosures. Allow opt-out of personalised ads where available.
